TV Markets by Nielsen Marketing Research Territory

Nielsen Marketing Research territory groups are another standard way of reporting sales data. The following table ranks TV markets within each Nielsen Territory. This provides a yardstick for determining the number of spot markets needed to achieve a given coverage of territory. For example, if the national media are not delivering sufficient advertising weight in New England, the planner will find that 3 TV markets (Boston, Hartford and Providence) contain almost 80% of the New England territory households. Or, the planner can use the table to get a better idea of how and what TV markets are needed to cover all of New England. Data is from a special Nielsen Station Index tabulation based on a January 1989 estimate.

How Network Delivery Varies by Market

National advertisers use spot television to increase network advertising weight in specific markets to achieve a predetermined level. These market goals are derived from the advertising budget and the market's share of the brand's projected sales. Thus, a spot schedule is usually indicated where a market has an unusually high brand-sales potential, or where the network weight delivered for the brand is below the national average used in planning, or both.

The first factor, market brand potential, varies by product and is difficult to generalize. The second factor, local-market network audiences, must be generalized because planning is based upn next season's anticipated network performance. The prevalance of network package buys, which tend to deliver average audience levels, supports the use of average data.

The following tabulation, chosen especially for the BROADCASTING/CABLECASTING YEARBOOK, shows Arbitron Televsion's Areas of Dominant Influence (ADI) in terms of percent of the total number of U.S. TV households. Also given, in like percentage terms, are the network audiences in each ADI market during prime-time hours, It is this market audience figure, when compared to the market's share of the population, that indicate whether the network commitment will perform above or below the national plan average in that market.

The figures are based on Aribtron Television's May 1988 Network Program Group Analysis.

Expiration of Mandatory Carriage Provision (76.64).

The [must carry] provisions shall remain in force until January 15, 1992, and shall thereafter be of no further force or effect.

Input Selector Switches and Consumer Education (76.66).

(a) A cable system operator shall offer to supply to each new subscriber and each existing subscriber an input selector switch for each separate television receiver for which cable service is provided by the cable operator. The operator shall comply with the following in offering the switch and installing cable service:

(1) Offer to supply and install a switch for all new and existing subscribers within six months of June 10, 1987, and thereafter on an annual basis until June 10, 1992, unless the subscriber already has an input selector switching device or his/her television receiver has such a device built in;

(2) A cable operator may charge for purchase or lease of switches and associated hardware and may separately charge for installation of switches for existing subscribers. A cable operator may not charge new subscribers a separate fee for switch installation.

(i) A cable operator may offer to inspect and/or install antenna grounding systems for outdoor antennas and shall separately charge for such services.

(3) A cable system operator is not required to provide a switch to any subscriber who declines the required offer, but is not thereby relieved from making the offer to any such subscriber thereafter on an annual basis;

(4) The switch offer shall be made using text chosen by the cable operator that includes the following points:

(i) An offer to supply an input selector switch for each separate television receiver to which cable service is provided;

(ii) The switch connects both to the cable service and an antenna, and enables selection between cable service and off-the-air broadcast television signals;

(iii) If the subscriber already has switching capability, either in a separate device or as a built-in feature of his/her television receiver, an additional switch may not be needed;

(iv) If the subscriber desires switching capability, he/she may have the cable system install a switch or may obtain a switch from it with written self-installation instructions;

(v) Switching capability may be obtained from other suppliers; and,

(vi) For the subscriber's convenience, attach an offer response form to be returned to the cable system's business office.

(5) Comply with the following requirements with respect to antennas:

(i) If an antenna is present, the operator shall not recommend that the antenna be removed;

(ii) If an antenna is not present, the operator shall inform the subscriber that the switch will be operational only if it is connected to an antenna;

(iii) Where the operator installs a switch and an antenna is present, it shall connect the switch to that existing antenna.

(iv) Cable operators must provide to subscribers information on the potential for interference related to the input selector switch and the associated connections and suggest measures to take to avoid such problems. Such suggestions must include the recommendations that shielded coaxial cable be used between the receiver and the switch terminals and that at least four feet of shielded coaxial cable be used for connecting switch terminals to any unshielded antenna leads.

(b) Individual cable subscribers are not required to purchase or lease input selector switches from their cable system. Subscribers may obtain such switches from suppliers other than their cable systems. Although cable subscribers are encouraged to establish and maintain independent access to off-the-air broadcast signals, they are not required to do so.

(c) The cable system operator shall provide the following information to each subscriber at the time of installation of cable service and to existing subscribers, in writing, within six months after June 10, 1987, and annually thereafter to all subscribers, using whatever language the operator deems appropriate to convey the following:

(1) Until June 10, 1992, the cable system may not be required to carry all broadcast signals available off-the-air in the community; and that,

(2) After June 10, 1992, the cable system will no longer be required to carry any broadcast signals; and thus,

(3) It may be necessary to use an antenna, in conjunction with an input selector switch, to access broadcast signals available off-the-air and not carried by the cable system.

(4) A description of the function of an input selector switch and state that its purpose is to aid the viewer in preserving independent access to off-the-air television service;

(5) That input selector switches may be obtained from suppliers other than the cable system and that there may be a range of switch options available, such as simple manual cable/broadcast switches, multiple input source switches, electronic switches, remote control switches, and receivers with built-in switches;

(6) Identify for their subscribers, by call sign and channel number, any full service broadcast signals not carried on the cable system whose predicted Grade B contour covers any portion of the cable community that are "significantly viewed" in the cable community, as defined in section 76.5(k) of the rules (the list of stations must be current to within one month of the distribution of the information required pursuant to this paragraph);

(7) Indicate that questions related to input selector switches should be directed to a specified individual at the cable system and provide a telephone number at which that person can be reached.

Origination Cablecasts by Candidates for Public Office (76.205).

(a) General requirements. If a cable television system operator shall permit any legally qualified candidate for public office to use the system's cablecasting channel(s) and facilities therefor, the system operator shall afford equal opportunities to all other such candidates for that office: provided, however, that such cable television system operator shall have no power of censorship over the material

A short course in cable, 1989

There are 9,300 operating cable systems in the U.S., serving some 25,000 communities. Another 300 franchises are approved but not built. Texas has the most systems (600) and California the most subscribers (4.9 million). Operating systems currently reach about 47 million subscribers, perhaps over 130 million people—52.8% of the nation's TV households. The largest (Cablevision Systems in Oyster Bay, N.Y.) has about 300,000 subscribers. Some have fewer than 100. Tele-Communications Inc. is the largest multiple system operator (MSO), with more than 9,500,000 subscribers. Industry revenues last year totaled approximately $14 billion. Most systems offer 20 or more channels. Systems constructed after March 1972 must have a minimum 20-channel capacity. The average monthly fee (basic service) is $14. Costs of laying cable range from $10,000 per mile in rural areas to $100,000 in urban areas and up to $300,000 where underground cable is required. An estimated 4,400 systems originate programing in their own studios, the average for 23 hours weekly. Equipment costs are as low as $30,000 for a small black and white operation and $200,000 for a color studio. Over 1,860 systems (20% of all systems) accept advertising on their local origination channels (excluding automated channels), with rates from $2 to $300 per 30-second spot. Most cable systems derive less than 5% of their gross revenues from advertising. Pay cable is on approximately 7,400 systems and reaches 35 million subscribers in 50 states. Most pay cable operators are reporting close to 82% penetration of their subscriber count. Home Box Office Inc. initiated the first national satellite interconnected pay network Sept. 30, 1975, using transponder time leased on the Satcom satellite. Aside from contracting for packaged pay programs, like HBO, cable operators can lease a channel to a pay program operator or secure their own programing directly from a supplier. Many systems have multiple cross-ownership ties.

Cable Systems in the United States and Canada

Key to Listings

Listed in this directory are cable television systems and franchise holders in the United States and Canada. Each is listed under the principal community of service, by state or province.

Shown to the right is a sample listing, with explanation of information keyed to the boldface numbers. This information is as of June 1988.

(1) Name of System, local address, zip code and telephone.

(2) Personnel.

(3) Area served, keyed by a solid square (■). Springfield is the principal community; the system also serves nearby Paris borough and Twilham township.

(4) County in which the service area is located.

(5) Type of TV market. According to FCC rules a CATV system is within a TV market if any part of the system falls within 35 miles of a commercial TV city-of-license. There are three locational categories: Top 100 markets; "smaller TV markets," i.e., any community with a commercial TV station not in the top 100; and, third, locations outside all TV markets. Systems outside a market may still be required to offer nonduplication protection if they fall within 55 miles of a city of license.

(6) Statistical data, also keyed by a solid square: total number of subscribers; homes passed by the system; total homes in the communities served; date the system began; length of the plant; cost to the subscriber for installation and monthly service; and fee the community levies on the cable company (usually a percentage of gross revenue). In states with across-the-board fee, the fee appears under the state heading.

(7) A third solid square (■) marks the beginning of the programing section of the listing. First there is a brief description of the system's channel capacity. Included are the total number of channels, the number which carry local broadcast television and the number of unused channels. Pan-State has 27 channels. Twelve are used for TV carriage; three are dark but available for future use. The system also supplies allband FM service. (If the system carries selected radio, rather than allband, the number of AM and FM stations is shown).

(8) Pay cable: the number of channels on which pay service is carried, the program supplier, total pay subscribers and monthly subscriber cost above that charged for regular cable services. Pay cable program suppliers are: Home Box Office (HBO), Showtime, The Movie Channel, Cinemax, The Playboy Channel, The Disney Channel, Bravo and American Movie Classics, as well as several pay-per-view, regional sports and general programing services. Information on pay and basic cable programing services is provided in Section E (Satellites).

(9) Basic cable: The sample listing shows that this system has two basic cable channels. The two channels carry satellite transmitted programing. Basic cable services carry a minimal charge paid by the cable system operator or no charge programing. Some cable systems group one or more basic cable services in a "tier", charging an additional amount above the basic charge. These services often carry advertising. Services are: ACTS Satellite Network, Arts & Entertainment (A&E), Black Entertainment Television (BET), CNN, CNN Headline News, CBN Cable Network, Country Music Television, C-SPAN, C-SPAN II, The Discovery Channel, Entertainment & Sports Programming Network (ESPN), Eternal Word Television Network (EWTN), The Fashion Channel, Financial News Network (FNN), Galavision, Genesis Story Time, The Home Shopping Network (I & II), KTVT(TV) Dallas, The Learning Channel, The Liberty Network, Music Television (MTV), The Nashville Network (TNN), National Jewish Television (NJT), Nickelodeon, The Nostalgia Channel, PTL-The Inspiration Network, QVC Network, SCORE, The Silent Network, Telshop, Tempo, The Travel Channel, Univision, USA Cable Network, Video Hits One (VH-1), The Weather Channel (TWC), WFMT(FM) Chicage, WGN-TV Chicago, WWOR-TV Secaucus, N.J., WPIX(TV) New York, WTBS(TV) Atlanta.

(10) Automated origination: These are generally alpha-numeric services providing a variety of information such as stock or sports reports, classified ads, etc. Two channels are used by this system to carry automated news, weather and time.

(11) Access channels: Channels are made available for programing by persons other than the cable operator. Channels are assigned to the general public, educational institutions and local government. Channels may also be leased by private parties.

(12) Other origination: The sample listing shows that this system has one other origination channel. This system has the capability to produce both studio and remote programing. This type of origination often carries advertising.

(13) System accepts advertising (on local origination or automated channels), with yearly revenue shown.

(14) Other services offered by the system: "Two-way capability" indicates the distribution system is equipped to handle subscriber-to-headend signals. Special radio service (distant imported signals, shortwave, etc.) are also shown.

(15) Ownership, keyed by the final black square (■): If a multiple system operator (MSO) owns the system in part or in whole, reference is made to the MSO directory on page D-294 of this section, listing the particulars for persons and companies with an interest in three or more cable operations. (Canadian MSO's are listed in the following directory). Headquarters addresses and other interests may appear here, rather than under the individual system's listing. If a cable operator has broadcast interests, reference is made to the "Broadcasters in Cable TV" directory which is in this section on page D-313.
